

At Meeting Yesterday

Reporter Bounced From Academic Council

By RICH THAW
Spartan Daily Staff Writer

This mild-mannered reporter was involuntarily excused from the Academic Council meeting yesterday after having spent the better portion of the afternoon trying to find the "top-drawer caucus" in the first place.

This excruciating embarrassment came as a finale to a nightmare that began when I was told variously by several different persons the meeting would be held in ADM201, ED431, Concert Hall and ED331.

The leader of SJS journalistic endeavors, Scott Moore, Spartan Daily editor, wanted the meeting covered for today's edition.

This reporter and a photographer, James

Brescoll, finally made it over to ED331, opened the door and faced a room of SJS' higher ups—the Academic Council.

The Business Management Department representative was giving a report—something about more typewriters for the offices. This discussion ended with a unanimous vote on the resolution.

KNEES SHAKING

The Faculty and Staff Affairs Committee representative began discussion of promotion recommendations from the College Promotions Committee.

At this point a council member walked around the circle and handed a note to the presiding officer.

... ejected

The chairman said, "It seems that we have a couple of visitors."

I stood up. My knees were shaking.

"Were you invited by this council to attend this meeting?"

I replied, "No, sir." My voice cracked as though I were reverting to adolescence. "I'm from the Spartan Daily," I said, copping out, "and have come to cover the meeting."

The august body was snickering about something—maybe it was my knees.

HAVE TO LEAVE

The chairman continued, "This is a closed meeting. I'm afraid you'll have to leave."

Flash, Flash. The photographer took a couple of quick pictures, while this reporter leaped through the door in a single bound.

As the result of an afternoon's sweat, this reporter gets the impression that the Academic Council still feels it should not open its meetings to the public and the press. Just intuition, I guess.

California's Brown Act requires all public legislative bodies to open their meetings to the public, and the press.

The Academic Council has steadfastly maintained it is an "advisory group" which it is and thereby does not come under the requirements of the Act.

I would have told them all about the spirit of the Brown Act as well as the letter of the Act had I not made such a swift exit.

I'm just a mild-mannered coward at heart.

ASB Judiciary Says Epstein Off Council

The ASB Judiciary ruled yesterday that Richard Epstein, who withdrew from school on Dec. 17, may no longer serve as graduate representative to Student Council.

Epstein's council seat is now vacant, ASB Chief Justice Rich Corby said.

Corby based the ruling on three points:

- "Non-members of the Association (ASB) may not hold office."
- "All qualifications for elective or appointive office are contingent on Article II of the ASB Constitution, except as otherwise noted in the constitution and by-laws."
- "Non-members of the Association are not entitled to the rights and privileges of the ASB Constitution unless otherwise noted in the constitution or by-laws (legislative acts)."

Article II of the constitution states: "All members duly registered at San Jose State College who have paid the student body fees shall be members of the Association . . . Members of the Association are entitled to all rights and privileges granted in this Constitution . . ."

Epstein said at the hearing "there is enough ambiguity" in the constitution to "warrant interpretation." He emphasized he is "not trying to cause a circus; I'm acting in good faith."

He stated his grade point average, academic standing and the fact that he held no other ASB office all are within the bounds of the constitution.

He still remains on campus, attending classes informally, and "still represents the same people."

The controversy arose last week when Epstein announced his withdrawal and his intention to retain his council seat. ASB Pres. John Hendricks requested a ruling from the Judiciary, stating "it is absurd to believe that any person can serve on council if he is not a student."

Epstein's removal from council will necessitate Hendricks' fifth appointment to the student legislature.

Epstein said he has the "same motivation to serve now as when I ran for office in the spring." He was then elected as an independent with 751 votes—and has opposed Hendricks on several allocations and appointments.

Open Meeting Discussion Postponed

A final committee recommendation on the question of opening Academic Council meetings to the press and public will not be submitted to Council until mid-March, according to Dr. Burton Brazil, chairman of the committee on Constitution and By-Laws.

The chairman said that the committee has heard arguments on both sides of the question whether public and press should be entitled to attend meetings.

Dr. John Gilbaugh, dean of the college, presented his views on why the Council meetings should be opened; the opposing view was presented by Dr. Brazil.

Since all members of the committee have not been present at recent meetings, no formal vote has been taken.

Dr. Brazil explained that the meeting question is part of a total package of proposed constitutional revisions.

No recommendation will be sent to Council until all the proposed changes have been studied and voted upon.

"The committee has completed about one-half of its work and should be done by mid-March, Dr. Brazil said.

Ensemble To Perform At Concert Tonight

Tonight's concert by the Wind Ensemble, under the direction of Clement Hutchinson, will open at 8:15 in Concert Hall with a presentation of Handel's Royal Fireworks Music.

Written to accompany a pyrotechnic display in Green Park, London, celebrating the Treaty Aix-la-Chapelle, in 1749, Handel wanted to score the work for winds and strings. The king commanded him to use wind instruments only.

The Percussion Ensemble, under the direction of Anthony Clirone, will assist the Wind Ensemble with a presentation of a scherzo by Saul Goodman, "Comedian's Gallop" by Kabalevsky and "Assimilation for Percussion" by director Clirone.

The Wind Ensemble will play Vaughan Williams' "Scherzo Alla Marcia," from Symphony No. 8 in D Minor. The Symphony was written in 1955 when the composer was 84 years old.

"Persichetti's Serenade No. 1 for Ten Wind Instruments" will be heard. Simple in structure, the Serenade is the first of eight suite-like compositions in freestyle written in 1929 for various combinations of instruments.

The concert will close with Gordon Jacobs' "Old Wine in New Bottles." Four old English tunes have been adapted with some of the fanciest orchestration possible with 14 wind instruments.

Hutchinson, associate professor of music, teaches clarinet, saxophone, conducting and the Wind Ensemble. He holds a Baccalaureate degree from the Eastman School of Music, and an M.M. from the University of Southern California. He is first clarinet of the San Jose Symphony and the Santa Clara Philharmonic.

Clirone, assistant professor of music, received his Baccalaureate degree and M.M. from the Juilliard School of Music where he was first percussionist with the Juilliard Orchestra for five years. He is assistant timpanist and percussionist with the San Francisco Symphony.

Stricken in Russia

Indian Prime Minister Dies of Heart Attack

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press International

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, 61, died here early Tuesday of a heart attack only 12 hours after he had signed a historic declaration with Pakistan renouncing the use of force between the two nations. He died at 1:40 a.m.

The tiny, self-effacing Shastri was stricken soon after he returned from a gala summit farewell banquet given by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin. A doctor was summoned, but Shastri died 40 minutes afterwards.

Announcement of the Indian leader's death plunged this Soviet city from a mood of celebration after the successful conference end, into one of confusion and despair.

"What a tragedy, what a tragedy," cried a woman official at the Hotel Tashkent as she awoke correspondents and conference officials to announce: "Mr. Shastri is dead."

Shastri had a history of heart trouble. During the week-long Tashkent summit conference, he had been in the thick of arduous negotiations aimed at keeping the tense and delicate talks from collapsing.

In private session with Kosygin and Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan, Shastri had fought for India's position in the Kashmir crisis.

But Shastri had appeared relieved and happy as he and Ayub shook hands at the conference table Monday before signing a communique opening the way to possible peaceful settlement of the 18 year Kashmir crisis that had brought India and Pakistan to war last year.

Ambassador Applications Available

The preliminary application deadline for the Community Ambassador program will be Wednesday, Jan. 12. Applications may be obtained from the local program office or from Dr. Raymond W. Stanley, professor of geography and representative of the program.

Interviews for the program will be held Thursday, Jan. 13.

On the results of the interviews, the Community Ambassador program committee will then select 10-12 finalists from all the colleges participating.

Final applications will be filled out Jan. 26 and interviews will be held Jan. 29.

Shift To Unapproved Housing

Survey Shows Reasons for Moving

The recent change in SJS housing policy allowing students under 21 to live unapproved with their parents' consent has resulted in such an exodus from approved housing that owners are complaining of empty buildings and impending foreclosures.

Why did the students move? What is wrong with approved housing? Is the old cliché true—that approved housing is grossly expensive, unfairly restrictive and unnecessary at SJS?

In a survey of 300 coeds in five approved housing centers, 80 per cent said they are completely dissatisfied. Many said they merely desire a change or believe they are old enough to use the freedoms of unapproved living sensibly.

However, all of the 60 per cent who claim to be completely dissatisfied with approved housing stated that they think the rates are too high and that lock-out and other rules are "extremely unfair and unnecessary."

The survey and spot interviews also turned up many students who are happy living approved, even though they are seniors or over 21.

Gary J. Whitman, 26-year old journalism major, says he prefers the dorms because of their convenience.

"This is my first semester at State, and I figured it would be easier to live in a dorm than to try to find an apartment. The dorms are close to campus, the rates are good, they have a nice lounge, and good recreational facilities like pool and ping-pong," he said.

Whitman did say that he misses being able to entertain females in his room or to have food in the room, but that he plans to return to the dorms next semester.

The other side of the coin, the side that may cause students to move unapproved as soon as they can, was expressed by a number of students interviewed.

"Financially, the students are really taken advantage of in approved housing," stated Diane Becklin, 19-year old sophomore living with five other coeds in an unapproved house on 11th Street.

Miss Becklin said her major complaint against the approved apartment in which she lived last year is that prices were "extraordinarily high as far as what you got for your money."

"The living conditions were crowded, there was a lack of privacy, and you had to go to the library to study every night," she listed as some of the reasons she moved unapproved.

Echoing Miss Becklin's complaints about high rents was another 19-year old sophomore coed who asked not to be named. She commented, "Approved rents would not be so exorbitant if the students were given what they are led to believe they are getting."

This frank young woman, who has lived in approved boarding houses for three semesters, said she found only "cramped quarters, inadequate facilities, and low grade food."

A former resident of one of the larger approved apartments for women said that she and five coeds who lived with her in a two-bedroom apartment paid a total of $600 a month.

"If a person is mature enough to go to college, she should be mature enough to determine whether or not she wants to live in approved housing," said Cindy

I did not know him well, and he did not know my name, but his visage was familiar to me from listening to his lectures on English literature. He was thin when I first saw him, his clothes hung on his limbs, but his rich, full beard masked the thinness of his frame, and his deep drawl and magnificent wit were his focal points.

After he became ill again, we sensed the emptiness. Dull winter lectures were given by a replacement, and English literature lost its color. Three months later, I did not recognize him immediately. His clothes still hung from his emaciated body, but his face looked empty and drawn without the beard. A thick wooden cane hung from his arm as he shuffled across the crowded cafeteria carrying a tray.

He sat down next to me and looked at the soup that had spilled into his salad plate. I asked how he was, and he said that he was doing pretty well, but the drawl was diminished, and his face was very drawn. He ate his soup slowly in silence, and when he was finished, he raised up, said "Good-by, my friend," and left.

Dale R. Spady, in a letter in the Dec. 9 Daily, questioned the validity of the three polls used in a Daily editorial about student support of the U.S. Viet Nam policy.

He especially doubted that Moderator's poll of 800 of its readers was representative of college students, in that these are "persons who have a common bond of interest which leads them to subscribe to the same magazine."

Spady's point is well taken, of course. It should be explained, though that Moderator's readers do not have a common bond of interest, and they do not subscribe. They have a common bond of achievement — academically and extracurricularly — and they receive the magazine free of charge for that reason.

The Moderator poll was not representative of the entire college community. As we pointed out when we released it, it was representative of the 800 leading college men who responded to it.

Editorial Comment

Public's Right To Know

Matters usually considered by the Academic Council are so important to the SJS academic community that accredited newsmen should be allowed to report council's debate on these issues to the public. The Spartan Daily strongly urges the council to permit reporters to attend its next meeting on Thursday, Jan. 20.

Because no reporters are allowed at council meetings, the press does not know the issues under discussion and consequently does not report them. Under these conditions, the public is left in total ignorance about matters which may vitally affect him.

For example, we recently compiled a long list of subjects which were discussed this semester by Academic Council. Many of them were approved by the group and subsequently by Pres. Robert D. Clark. The press (and the public) knows the details of NONE of them.

The more important subjects include possible revision of general education requirements, proposals for increased financial support for the library and changes in rules relating to student use of facilities, and a plan to establish a graduate faculty at SJS.

A proposal to establish a special collection room in the library to house unusual holdings, proposal to establish departmental honors programs, plan to establish a faculty club and a club building, and recommendations relating to faculty pay raises were also considered.

The list also includes many other topics which are of concern to many students and even to those in the community interested in the college and its development.

At present, the press is informed of these, and other items only through official council minutes. These, of course utterly fail to promote any understanding of the often complex subjects.

Reporters may approach members of the council to ask them about details concerning certain matters. But such third hand information is a totally inadequate, often misinterpreted, and definitely inferior way to transmit significant news to the public.

In this restrictive atmosphere of secrecy, distrust of the press, and faulty reporting, stories which would have tremendous impact on the community simply are left buried. Surely this represents the council's attitude of contempt.

The Spartan Daily advises Pres. Robert D. Clark and the San Jose State College faculty that such an atmosphere is not a professional manner of operation for a college ostensibly concerned about public relations and the image it presents to the public.

At its meeting of Oct. 11, 1965, the Academic Council approved the following statement:

"The members of the council or of the council committees represent the interests of and are responsible to the entire college community rather than solely to the department area from which they are elected or appointed.

How can the council possibly achieve such responsibility unless the public has adequate knowledge of the business discussed by this group? Such a statement necessarily implies the obligation of adequate open news communication.

Unless its statement is hypocritical, the council obviously recognizes its civic responsibility. It should immediately admit the press and support investigative reporting of key issues of business.

Continued refusal by the council to admit reporters cannot be endured nor tolerated by intelligent citizens of this college society.

SJS in Retrospect

15 YEARS AGO

Administration figures showed that more than 400 instructors were teaching at SJS on a full or part-time basis.

College Pres. T. W. MacQuarrie said there was "little hope" that 400 unit dormitories could be completed at SJS unless the state revised construction laws requiring costs to be split between state funds and revenue bonds issued by the State Department of Education. Construction of the Women's Gym was ahead of schedule with completion set for April.

10 YEARS AGO

"Red Tape" the "much awaited" all-student Revelries musical comedy opened for a five-show run in Morris Dailey Auditorium. The Christopher Marlowe version of "Dr. Faustus" with Frank Davidson in the lead, was presented on KNTV.

Dr. Epaminondas Panagopoulos, assistant professor of history, was credited by the American History Review for finding manuscripts written in 1776 by Alexander Hamilton.

Rabble Rousing

The 'Acid' Test

By PAT HEFFERNAN

California beatniks call it "The Experience," college kids take it for kicks, Hollywood stars try it as a substitute for the psychiatrist's couch, claimed a copyrighted feature in "This Week," national Sunday magazine, referring to LSD.

The article, entitled "The Nightmare Drug," is an apparent attempt to convince the unwary readers that LSD—d-lysergic acid diethylamide, a drug that releases the subconscious mind in the form of hallucinations—to not complain when the government places it under the same short-sighted laws that now withhold narcotics and the non-addicting marijuana from the public.

'TREMENDOUS EXPERIENCE'

LSD, true, can cause mental damage if used incorrectly. But it can be a tremendous experience for those who are mentally stable and aware enough to look inside themselves and at the REAL existence around them. Should these people be denied this opportunity because the rest of the population is too blind to understand the correct use of these things?

They are, and they are because they have the misfortune to live in a society that is scared stiff that someone using "pot" or "acid" will allow a bit of the REAL, the non-physical part of existence, to intrude into the good old USA.

People who are afraid that those who are aware enough see through the myopia of this backward, Western, Judeo-Christian middle-class hell called America will quietly enjoy themselves in a way that the blue-noses think is naughty.

UNDERSTANDING YOURSELF

So the "leaders" of the country, too blind to see that the physical universe is merely a wall around understanding the true nature of existence, strike out in fear and say, "NO, BAD, BAD!"

Drugs are one way to understand your relationship with Existence, which Westerners sloppily call God. They are a way of achieving Zen's "satori," true understanding of the nature of life and yourself. But because they are not "wholesome" like motherhood and patriotism, they are forbidden.

The way things are going now, next it'll be five years in the federal pen for possessing jazz records.

ROMAN IN THE GLOAMIN'

Now as the end of the first semester draws near, one fact emerges clearly: you are all going to flunk out of school.

There are two things you can do about it. First, you can marry money. (I don't mean you marry the money itself; I mean you marry a person who has money. Weddings between people and currency have not been legal anywhere in the United States since the Smoot-Hawley Act. Personna® Stainless Steel Blades, on the other hand, are legal everywhere and are, indeed, used with great pleasure and satisfaction in all fifty states of the Union and Duluth. I bring up Personna Stainless Steel Blades because this column is sponsored by the makers of Personna Stainless Steel Blades, and they are inclined to get edgy if I omit to mention their product. Some of them get edgy and some get double-edgy because Personna Blades come both in Injector style and Double Edge style.)

But I digress. I was saying you can marry money but, of course, you will not because you are a high-minded, clean-living, pure-hearted, freckle-faced American kid. Therefore, to keep from flunking, you must try the second method: you must learn how to take lecture notes.

According to a recent survey, eleven out of ten American undergraduates do not know the proper way to take lecture notes. To illustrate this appalling statistic, let us suppose you are taking a course in history. Let us further suppose the lecturer is lecturing on the ruling houses of England. You listen intently. You write diligently in your notebook, making a topic outline as you have been taught. Like this:

- I. House of Plantagenet.
- II. House of Lancaster.
- III. House of York.

Then you stop. You put aside your pen. You blink back a tear, for you cannot go on. Oh, yes, you know very well that the next ruling house is the House of Tudor. The trouble is you don't know the Roman numeral that comes after III.

It may, incidentally, be of some comfort to learn that you are not the only people who don't know Roman numerals. The fact is, the Romans never knew them either. Oh, I suppose they could tell you how much V or X were or like that, but when it came to real zingers like LXI or MMC, they just flung away their styluses and went downtown to have a bath or take in a circus or maybe stab Caesar a few times.

You may wonder why Rome stuck with these ridiculous numerals when the Arabs had such a nice, simple system. Well, sir, the fact is that Emperor Vespasian tried like crazy to buy the Arabic numerals from Suleiman The Magnificent, but Suleiman wouldn't do business—not even when Vespasian raised his bid to 100,000 gold piastres, plus he offered to throw in the Colosseum, the Appian Way, and Technicolor.

So Rome stuck with Roman numerals—to its sorrow, as it turned out. One day in the Forum, Cicero and Pliny got to arguing about how much is CDL times MVIX. Well, sir, pretty soon everyone in town came around to join the hassle. In all the excitement, nobody remembered to lock the north gate and—wham! before you could say ars longa—in rushed the Goths, the Visigoths, and the Green Bay Packers!

Well, sir, that's the way the empire crumbles, and I digress. Let's get back to lecture notes. Let's also say a word about Burma Shave®. Why? Because Burma Shave is made by the makers of Personna Blades who, it will be recalled, are the sponsors of this column. They are also the sponsors of the ultimate in shaving luxury. First coat your kisser with Burma Shave, regular or menthol—or, if you are the devil-may-care sort, some of each. Then whisk off your stubble with an incredibly sharp, unbelievably durable Personna Blade, Injector or Double Edge—remembering first to put the blade in a razor. The result: facial felicity, cutaneous cheer, epidermal elysium. Whether you shave every day, every III days, or every VII, you'll always find Personna and Burma Shave a winning combination.

Personnam amo, Tom Personnam amat, Dick Personnam amat, Harry Personnam amat, quique Personnam amant—et quoque amabit.

The Old Perfessor

BY PAUL SAVOIA

"Don't worry about it. I didn't even know how to spell my name until I was nine years old," Spartan basketball star S. T. Safford said laughingly.

He was referring to a story in yesterday's Spartan Daily which referred to the S. T. as standing for "Saint Thomas."

Actually, the S. T. does stand for Saint. However, the other name is Samuel, not Thomas. That makes his full name St. Samuel Safford.

"I guess my name should be spelled St., as they do in 'saint.' But I like S.T., that's what all my friends call me," he continues.

Safford's parents obviously were readers of the Bible. S.T.'s brothers are named Noah, Hose, John and Amos.

Spartan coach Stu Inman relates a story about Safford in his high school days at Edison in Stockton:

"Safford's chemistry teacher kept on hearing 'S.T.' and finally asked Safford what it meant. S.T. said 'my name is St. Samuel, wouldn't you want to be called S.T. too.'"

The important thing about Safford last Saturday night was not his name, but the way he played basketball. He made 13 or 14 shots and scored 28 points as the Spartans defeated Santa Barbara 71-52. The 28 markers tied his personal high against Loyola last season.

"It was just one of those nights you dream about. I couldn't miss. I could have tried a drop-kick and it would have gone in," Safford mused.

He gave a good deal of credit to Pete Newell, Jr., who set up Safford five times with perfect passes.

"Pete has that extra perception. He senses where you are going to be," S.T. said.

Safford was especially amazed at Newell's ability to lead him perfectly on full-court, fast-break passes, with Safford on the receiving side like a football end.

That analogy might become a reality next season when Safford tries out for the Spartan football team. He has never played inter-collegiate football, but showed such grace on the basketball court that the San Francisco 49ers and the San Diego Chargers picked him in professional football drafts this season.

The name St. Samuel Safford might be making the football news also.

Keep it simple, he says, and leave it go at S.T.

Frosh Basketball

Spartan freshman basketballers try to jump out of the rut of defeat tonight when they play host to Cabrillo Junior College of Aptos.

Game time is 5:30 p.m. in the Spartan Gym.

The Spartababes have lost their last six contests, the latest being an 84-64 drubbing at the hands of the Stanford yearlings.

SEMI-FINALS TONIGHT

ATO meets SAE and the Awful-Awfuls tangle with Sigma Nu in tonight's semi-final round of the intramural basketball tournament's "A" bracket.

Both games start at 6 in the PER gym.

Semi-final matches in the "B," "C," and "D" divisions will also be held in the Men's, Women's and PER gyms during the evening.

In weekend "B" battles Wimo smashed Air Force ROTC 69-39, Markham Hall whipped Sigma Pi 45-38 and the Penetrators crushed Charlotte Hall 60-11.

"C" scores were Ferns 39, Peace Mongers 24; Whiskey and Water

56, Golden Lions 41; and Eighth St. A. C. over Army ROTC and South Eighth St. Lifters over ATO No. 2 both by forfeit.

In "D" frays it was Tip-Ins 48, Allen Hall No. 2 38; Bending Moments 35, B-Ballers 27; Grant Hall 40, Sigma Nu No. 2 29; and Studs 40, Honacs 26.

MEETINGS
Intramural Sports Director Dan Unruh has announced that two meetings will be held in PER 201 Wednesday.

The first of these, at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon is for managers of the Thursday-Friday intramural swimming meet.

Following this, the intramural board will convene at 4:15.

Mumby Impressed

Spartan Grapplers Pin Four Foes In Decisive 27-15 Conquest of Cal

Scoring four pins, the SJS wrestling squad coasted to a relatively easy 27-15 victory over Cal, Friday in the Spartan gym.

The Bears were able to win only three of nine matches, and one of these was by default as Ron Matheson sprained his knee while wrestling Al Siegal in the 145-pound battle and had to retire early.

Spartan coach Hugh Mumby was impressed with the win, and singled out 152-pounder Gary Scardina and 167-pounder Mike Herschfelt, both of whom won by falls for especially outstanding efforts.

"Scardina is just getting back into his top form after a year's layoff from wrestling, and his performance Friday was his best this season," Mumby said.

"Herschfelt has improved with each meet, and is coming on well."

Loren Miller, who moved up two weight divisions from his usual 145 and pinned his opponent at 160, also drew praise from Mumby, who indicated that Miller will "probably wrestle at 152 or 160 in future matches."

Here are the complete results of Friday's meet: 123 pounds —

Dennis Runyon (SJS) drew Barry Masuda; 130 — Stuart Crymes (Cal) decisioned Joe Silva; 137 — Dan Swenson (SJS) won by forfeit; 145 — Al Siegal (Cal) won by default from Ron Matheson; 152 — Gary Scardina (SJS) pinned

Kim Oller; 160 — Loren Miller (SJS) pinned Bernie Vancil; 167 — Mike Herschfelt (SJS) pinned Don Schlotz; 177 — Rich Strangio (Cal) pinned Paul Hatling; Heavyweight — Rich Popejoy (SJS) pinned Sam Hard.

Records Shattered

Hermen, Mile Relay, Fergus Highlight Indoor Track Meet

Sparked by pint-sized sprinter Wayne Hermen and a powerful mile relay team plus triple jumper Craig Fergus, SJS made a good showing in Saturday night's third annual San Francisco Examiner Indoor Track Meet at the Cow Palace.

Hermen won the 160-yard dash in 16.6, a tenth of a second off the world record set by Larry Questad of Stanford last year, and it was a new meet record.

TIED MARK

The small senior also ran a strong third in the 60-yard dash in which he tied the old meet mark. Hermen was clocked in 6.2 but Charles Greene of Nebraska, NCAA sprint king, nosed out Darrell Newman of Fresno State in a record-shattering 6.0. The world standard is 5.9 set by Newman last year.

Herb Carper, a former Spartan dashman, held the previous Examiner indoor mark.

The SJS mile relay quartet put a new meet record in the books when it raced to a 3:21.1 and a victory over powerful Cal. Stanford and the Santa Clara Youth Village were other relay squads defeated by the Spartans.

PERSONAL HIGH

Hermen ran the first quarter-mile, followed by Ken Shackelford and John Twoomey, and anchored by the lightning-quick Tommy Smith.

Fergus set an all-time personal indoor high when he leaped 50-7 in the triple jump and took first place.

He has done a 51-7 1/2 wind-aided leap outside. High jumper Ed Johnson went as far as 6-8 in his Spartan debut but did not place. The next big indoor meet for the SJS trackmen will be Jan. 22 when they will travel south for the Los Angeles Indoor Invitational in the Sports Arena.

Sure
we have desk
jobs.

Desk jobs at Cape Kennedy, helping check out the Apollo moon rocket. Desk jobs at an air base, testing the world's most powerful jet engines. Desk jobs in Samoa, setting up a TV network to help teach schoolchildren. The most interesting desk jobs in the world are at General Electric.

(Have a seat.)

First, why not sit down with the man from G.E. when he visits campus. Talk with him about your goals. He'll talk with you about the hundred different avenues available at G.E. to help you reach those goals.

You may be working anywhere in the world, doing anything in the world. From marketing appliances like a new oven that cleans itself electrically . . . to designing a computer that's no bigger than a suitcase.

Interesting problems. Important challenges. Real rewards, in money and opportunity. They're all part of holding down a desk job at G.E. Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.

GOALS

Personal objectives are about as varied as viewpoints on what constitutes success.

Consciously or not, a man's goals are modified from time to time. Even so, the man who can set his sights early and stay on course is a good deal better off than the man who wavers.

Having the opportunity to work independently and develop your resources to their fullest potential may fit in with your career objectives. If so, you should investigate the field of life insurance sales and sales management. The business offers many challenges, and Provident Mutual can give you an early start by beginning your training in our Campus Internship Program for college students.

It might pay you to find out more.

Student Affairs Office Moves to Building R

The Student Affairs office has made a big move—from Barracks 1 to Building R, the old Police Science and AFOTC building. The office will remain at its present location until the Student Union building is built.

When Tower Hall is completed, the offices of Pres. Robert D. Clark, Vice President William J. Dusek and Assistant to the President Richard Yoo will be moved from the Administration Building to the second floor of Tower Hall.

James Noah's publications office and a new conference room will be located on the first floor of the Tower.

The crowded appearance of the present offices will be replaced by a better arrangement and allotment of space according to Yoo. One of the new conveniences will be the use of a corridor connecting the three executive offices.

The expected move into Tower Hall had been planned for Christmas vacation, but because of delays on the completion of the Tower and Morris Dailey Auditorium the date of moving was postponed.

Three years ago the Tower Hall complex had been condemned on the fact that it was a possible earthquake risk. In April, 1963, Dr. Glenn S. Dumke, state college chancellor ordered the closing of Tower Hall and the auditorium following a report submitted by the state engineers on the building's condition.

The announcement to destroy Tower Hall was made in November, 1964. This spurred the student body, faculty and Alumni Association into action to save the Tower. A 3,000 signature petition was sent to Governor Brown requesting the preservation of the Tower.

The great student participation and school official backing along with the backing of several politicians saved the Tower.

Student Exemption

Students who wish to be exempt from the college housing policy should pick up forms at the Housing Office, 319 S. Fifth St. by 5 p.m. Friday, according to Robert Baron, housing coordinator.

Study Shows Reasons For Moving

Waring, redheaded sophomore living in an approved house on Fifth Street.

Miss Waring doesn't believe in the approved housing practice of lump rent payments or contracts. She said payment of rents should be on a monthly basis, and she is against any contracts at all.

"It seems ridiculous to have to have the bed made by a certain time or get a demerit. It's like the second grade," she said.

"Most people living in approved housing are not at all interested in recreation facilities there. They would rather go out to escape the rules," she noted.

Dr. Robert Martin, associate dean of student personnel, said that many students "have the wrong idea about approved housing."

"The main reason for approved housing is not to control the behavior of students, as is the popular conception," he said, "but to provide the students with housing that is inspected for cleanliness and safety and will offer the student extra educational and social opportunities not found in unapproved living centers."

"We are not too terribly concerned about behavior of students... those who misbehave in unapproved housing are usually the ones who would misbehave in any type of housing," he stated.

An informal comparison of rents between approved and unapproved housing reveals that students can live a little less expensively in unapproved housing and avoid any contracts or lump sum payments. Many students question the right of approved householders to require owners who compete with them have no guarantee of rent more than a month in advance.

new leader of the Dodge Rebellion

Tired of looking at dream cars you can't buy? The cars you see at the Auto Show and never see again? Well, then, do something about it. See the one you can buy, right now, today, at your Dodge dealer's. It's Charger, a full-sized, fastback action car that's all primed up and ready to go. With V8 power. Bucket seats, fore and aft. Full-length console. Disappearing headlights that disappear without a trace. Rear seats that quickly convert into a spacious cargo compartment. Just pop the rear buckets down and watch the cargo space go up. That's Charger—breathtaking new leader of the Dodge Rebellion. Until you've seen it, you haven't seen everything from Dodge for '66. Charger, a brawny, powerful dream car that made it—all the way to your Dodge dealer's.
